

Six titles were up for grabs at Sunday's Britannia TTC Closed Championships

It kicked off with the handicap singles and Terry May left a number of players in his wake including Andrew Doshier to reach the final against Richard Hutchinson who beat Andy Warner in the quarter final, In the final May who started from 14 - 2 up went for it early on with some power hitting to lead 20 - 6 giving him 14 game points, however Hutchinson dug in and amazingly won 15 points consecutively to win it, in the second set Hutchinson carried on the good work and lost just a handful of points to deservidly take the title 2-0,

In the Veteran singles over 60's it was played on a round robin with four players and Andrew Holmes won remaining unbeaten from Terry May in second place.

In the woman's singles final Kelly Yuengungpaknam and Rosemary Curtis played a five set thriller with Yuengungpaknam holding on to take the fourth set at duece and then run away with the final set for her first Britannia ladies singles title.

In the Restricted singles, Nigel Page and Martin Tomes beat Kelly Yuengungpaknam and Chris Reeves Croft respectively in the semi finals to make it through and a highly entertainlig match saw Page come from 0-2 down and get within a point of taking the final set to duece before going down to Tomes in the final.

There were no surprises in the Veteran over 40's singles as the top four seeds came through, Andrew Warner and Richard Hutchisnon were too good for Andrew Doshier and Andrew Holmes respectively and Hutchisnon showed considerable tactical aplomb in not attacking as much as usual but twiddleing the combination bat and mostly chopping and blocking with occasional attacking flouries which saw him win in straight sets.

It was a case of the same top four seeds getting though to the semi finals of the Men's singles and this time Richard Hutchinson and Andrew Warner beat 3-0 the player they hadn't played in the semi final of the Veteran singles to get though, the pattern in this event was different in that Warner went for his trademark attacking shots more while Hutchinson attacked more, this suited Warner and the outcome was for the veivwers a more visually stunning match in which the first two ends were tied with Warner coming through very closely in games three and four.
